

Energy and Natural Resources

We stand out as one of the Gulf Coast's most experienced energy and natural resources law firms. It's where we are truly in our element.

For decades, we have helped industry clients in Louisiana, Texas and on the Outer Continental Shelf both resolve high-stakes disputes and handle routine operational issues. Our clients rely on our depth of experience, knowledge, creativity, reputation and network connections. Our clients in the energy sector include:

- Major and independent oil and gas producers and operators
- Renewable energy companies
- Pipeline companies
- Service companies
- Chemical and other industrial companies
- Landowners
- Royalty owners
- Lenders

Lawyers from across the country and around the world turn to our lawyers when issues are particularly complex or novel. We have often been the first firm to achieve a particular regulatory or judicial outcome in the industry.

We advise and represent clients on the full range of transactional, title, litigation, arbitration, regulatory and oilfield service matters involving oil and gas exploration, development, production, transportation, processing, storage and distribution.

As industry focus on renewable energy sources has expanded, so too is our practice expanding to provide our clients with leading-edge guidance in this important arena. We draw on a rich legacy in the industry, having been a leading energy firm for more than a half century. We have the insights and applicable know-how to assist clients on a full complement of renewable energy issues affecting the solar, wind, geothermal, wave, biomass and alternative fuel sectors. We are also at the forefront of carbon capture, utilization and sequestration projects in our region.
